Lung Ailments by Cornell Feline Health Center

Despite some minor anatomical differences, feline lungs are structured just like human lungs, operate in the same way, and serve the same purpose. As in humans, these two bag-shaped, elastic organs are located opposite each other - one on each side of the animal's heart - and occupy most of the space in its chest cavity.

Like any mammalian lungs, says Richard Goldstein, DVM, feline lungs have two main functions - ventilation and perfusion - both of which are essential to a cat's vital processes. "Any anatomical differences between a cat's lungs and your lungs are not significant," says Dr. Goldstein, an assistant professor of clinical sciences at Cornell University's College of Veterinary Medicine. Problems with these life-sustaining organs are "very, very common," he observes, noting that "a busy veterinary emergency clinic may see one or more cases of pulmonary distress or disease every day."

What Are Ventilation and Perfusion?

Ventilation, he explains, is the act of breathing - the rhythmic inhalation and exhalation of air from the environment. This steady, involuntary activity is effected primarily by the muscular activity of the diaphragm, a membrane separating the animal's chest area and its abdominal cavity.

Perfusion is the process by which the lung removes life-supporting oxygen from the inhaled air and delivers it into the cat's circulating blood. In this process, the oxygen is exchanged for carbon dioxide, which is produced in the animal's cells. The carbon dioxide is then released via exhaled air. This purification occurs in microscopic, sack-like tissue structures called alveolae, which are packed with tiny blood vessels (capillaries) that facilitate the efficient passage of gases into and out of the blood stream. "As long as ventilation and perfusion are happening," says Dr. Goldstein, "the blood will contain an appropriate level of oxygen."

Minimize the Risk

The prognosis for many feline lung diseases depends on the nature of the specific condition, the extent of its progression and the treatments that are available for it. On the bright side, Dr. Richard Goldstein points out that most cases of respiratory distress are caused by either asthma or pleural effusion, and the success rate of emergency treatment for those two ailments is "pretty good."

"Both of these lung conditions generally respond well to therapy," he says, "depending on the underlying cause for the pleural effusion. A typical stay at the veterinary clinic will last between 24 and 48 hours. After that, chronic therapy must be initiated to lessen the chances that another attack will occur in the future."

Dr. Goldstein urges cat owners to have their animals undergo a medical checkup at least once yearly that includes a thorough exam of its entire respiratory system. Fecal examinations should also be done periodically, and cats should be dewormed as needed. In addition, he suggests that owners keep the air in their homes as clean as possible, free of such potential allergens as dust, mold and smoke. "And all cat owners should be aware of the signs of respiratory distress," he adds. "The earlier these signs are picked up, the better."

Acute and Chronic

Unfortunately - and in some cases tragically - a wide variety of disease conditions, either chronic or acute, can interfere with proper ventilation and perfusion. The most common causes of these respiratory conditions include allergies, parasitic infections, benign or cancerous growths, pus-filled abscesses, adverse reactions to inhaled fungi, and the malfunction of other vital organs, especially the heart.

Signs of an acute respiratory illness include labored breathing, periodic blackouts or fainting; pale or bluish lips, gums and nose tissue; irregular heartbeat; and gastrointestinal upset. A severe acute attack is likely to result in a cat's death if veterinary treatment is not immediately available. The signs of a chronic lung disease are similar, but their manifestations are less dramatic. In a long-lasting condition, the signs are likely to worsen and become perceptible to an owner over an extended period - years, perhaps - and tend to be marked by multiple attacks, progressive loss of appetite, lethargy, and weight loss before eventually causing an animal's death.

Ominous Signs

A chronic lung disease may often be identified during the course of a routine veterinary examination, says Dr. Goldstein. In some cases, therapy for a chronic condition can be initiated and, if maintained indefinitely, can extend a cat's life for several years. The prognosis for acute conditions that suddenly prompt severe and unexpected respiratory distress is much poorer.

According to Dr. Goldstein, "this has to do with the ancestry of cats" - the ploys that they have developed over thousands of years to conceal any vulnerabilities to would-be attackers in the wild. "As a result," he points out, "cats have become very, very good at hiding any signs of respiratory distress. They can handle severely reduced functionality in the lungs and still seem normal. Maybe an owner will notice that the cat is breathing a bit more rapidly or is moving with a little bit of increased effort - but then something will happen that will push the animal over into real respiratory distress." At this point, emergency care is usually needed to save a stricken animal's life.

Common Lung Conditions

Several common disorders that are characterized by compromised lung function and are, in fact, considered to be lung diseases do not originate in the lungs themselves. Asthma and bronchitis, for example, are viewed as obstructive lung diseases, although they are precipitated not in the lungs but in the larger and smaller airways - the bronchi and bronchioles - that lead from the windpipe (trachea) to the lungs. In these conditions, the flow of air to the lungs is obstructed by muscle spasms, mucus, and sloughed-off cellular matter in the breathing tubes. These obstructions are caused by an over-reaction of the tissue lining the bronchi to any of several stimuli, such as bacteria and viruses; parasitic worms; or inhaled dust, smoke, mold or pollen.

Another comparatively common lung condition, pleural effusion, occurs not within the lung but in the space between the outer surface of the lungs and the inner surface of the chest cavity, both lined by a thin tissue called the pleura. A wide variety of causes - including heart failure, kidney disease, infection, cancer and traumatic injury to the airways - result in the buildup of fluid within the pleural cavity, the pressure of which compresses the lungs and inhibits their expanding and contracting. This, in turn, causes shortness of breath, chest pains, fever, and several other serious problems.

Along with asthma and bronchitis, says Dr. Goldstein, the most common feline lung diseases overall are those resulting in pleural effusion. They include:

- Pyothorax, a bacterial infection of the chest;
- - Feline infectious peritonitis \(FIP\), the result of a specific viral infection that may cause fluid to build up within the abdominal and/or chest cavities;
- - Chylothorax, an accumulation of a fatty fluid (chyle) in the chest;
- - Lymphoma, a cancer of the lymphoid tissue;
- - Hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, a heart condition resulting in the excessive accumulation of fluid in body tissues and cavities.

Also common are lung diseases associated with infection by feline immunodeficiency virus \(FIV\) and those caused by such parasites as heartworms and lungworms, although the prevalence of those parasitic infections depends to a great extent on geographical, climatic and seasonal factors. Likewise, a lung disease called histoplasmosis is seen in certain rural areas of the U.S. This condition is caused by inhalation of a fungus especially prevalent in soil on which chickens are raised.

Diagnosis and Treatment

When a cat that is experiencing respiratory distress is brought to a clinic, the veterinary personnel on hand will, of course, attempt to discern which of the various lung ailments is responsible - but not before treating the animal's potentially deadly breathing difficulty. Says Dr. Goldstein: "By the time a cat is in an emergency situation, we have to treat first and diagnose later because it is very, very fragile. Stress is the last thing that you want to cause in an animal with significant respiratory disease. So after a brief cursory exam, we will put the cat on oxygen and give medications or sedatives as needed. Sometimes, we will not touch it at all - we'll let it calm down a little bit."

OUR PROGRAMME

9.20 – 9.30 Welcome and Houskeeping

9.30 – 10.30 Dr Jacqueline Norris

Feline Infectious Peritonitis – dispelling myths about diagnosis and treatment

In this talk we will revise our current understanding of how this disease develops and the best way to diagnose it. We will also discuss recent research on potential new treatments.

10.30 – 11.30 Dr Lara Boland

Feline Pancreatitis – from critical illness to chronic vomiting

What is pancreatitis and what signs of illness can it cause in cats? We will discuss issues related to the diagnosis and treatment of pancreatitis in cats.

11.30 – 12.00 The Panel

Q & A

Seminar participants have the opportunity to submit written questions to be addressed by the appropriate speaker/s. Questions should be submitted with your Registration but will be accepted until Registrations close on the 1st November, 2019

12.00 – 12.40 LUNCH

12.40 – 1.40 Dr Jasmin Hyatt

Long- term contraception in queens – what are our best options?

Constant displays of estrus in breeding queens and the requirement for confinement is a regular source of frustration in cattery environments. We will discuss the safety, duration of action and impact on future fertility of the best options for contraception currently available in Australia.

1.40 – 2.35 Dr Bianca Waud

Genetic Health Screening – or how to navigate the jungle of genetic tests

A range of genetic tests are available for the cat, but does it make sense to test everything available? We will discuss the pros and cons of genetic testing including its limitations and risks.

2.35 – 3.30 Dr Lara Boland

Coughs and Wheezes – Feline Asthma

Often a silent disease of cats, asthma is progressive over time and if left untreated it can lead to irreversible lung changes. We will discuss common signs of asthma and the diagnosis and management of this common feline disease.

Eye Envy

How to Use Eye Envy for your Cat

Tear Stain Remover

Website: www.eyeenvy.com.au.

Step 1: If your pets eyes are very crusty and full of debris, then GENTLY clean around their eyes with warm water and a toothbrush (softly) or a small flea comb. Try to remove as much debris as possible. If eyes are mostly runny, with no big clumps of debris, then skip this step.

Please NOTE: Step 1 is for first time users and for animals that have EXTREME debris in their eyes. After the initial application of Eye Envy, you will only have to do Steps #2 and #3.

Step 2: Shake bottle of Eye Envy solution well and apply to the eyes using the special Eye Envy applying pads

Step 3: Gently wipe around eye area. Don't be afraid to get it too wet. Do NOT pour Eye Envy solution into eyes, but don't worry if a bit gets inside. Allow to dry.

Step 4: After completing steps #1 through #3, gently work the EYE ENVY POWDER into your pets fur, working around the eyes and working powder against the hair growth using the special Eye Envy applying pads Allow to dry. You can apply the powder immediately after applying the solution. The powder is used more by show people, but definitely brightens the fur. Avoid powder in their nose. VOILA..You're DONE! Your pets eyes should look great within a few hours!!!!

Do NOT pour into eyes

HOW TO: SELL OR GIVE AWAY A CAT OR DOG?

1. Make sure your cat or dog is microchipped

In NSW, you must microchip your cat or dog before it is 12 weeks old or before you sell it (whichever happens first).

Some exemptions apply, visit www.olg.nsw.gov.au to find out more.

2. Make sure your cat or dog is registered

You also need to register dogs by the time they are six months old, and cats by the time they are four months old.

Once you have paid the registration fee, the animal will have lifetime registration, even if ownership changes.

You can register your cat or dog:

- ♦ online with the NSW Pet Registry: www.petregistry.nsw.gov.au
- ♦ online with Service NSW: www.service.nsw.gov.au
- ♦ in person at a Service NSW Centre or your local council office.

Some registration exemptions apply. Visit www.olg.nsw.gov.au to find out more.

3. Consider desexing your cat or dog

Consider desexing your cat or dog prior to selling or giving it away. Desexing can help avoid some unwanted diseases and behaviours and stops unwanted litters.

Some councils will give you a discounted registration fee if your animal is desexed. To find out more, contact your local council.

4. Advertise it for sale using an identification number

From 1 July 2019, you need to include an identification number in any advertisements when you sell or give away a cat or dog.

An identification number can be either:

- ◆ a microchip number
- ◆ a breeder identification number OR
- ◆ a rehoming organisation number.

This rule applies regardless of:

- ◆ the age of the animal
- ◆ the place you plan to advertise
- ◆ whether you are a hobby or professional breeder; or your cat or dog has had an accidental or one-off litter
- ◆ whether or not you bred the animal
- ◆ whether or not the animal you are selling or rehoming has been born yet.

If you don't use an identification number, or you falsify a number, you could be issued with an on-the-spot fine or face court, where a maximum penalty of $5,500 applies.

5. Make sure ownership is transferred

When you are happy you have found a good home for your cat or dog, you need to transfer ownership to the person buying or adopting your pet. It is important that you check that this has been done and the person has accepted ownership.

Further information on how to transfer cat or dog ownership is available at www.olg.nsw.gov.au/pet-ownership

To find out more visit:

www.dpi.nsw.gov.au/companion-animals

NSW Cat Fanciers' Association Inc.

Social Media Policy and Guidelines

POLICY

Purpose

This policy is designed to protect the interests of NSW Cat Fanciers Association Inc (NSW CFA), its employees, members and workers (including voluntary workers). To this end, when engaging in social media, NSW CFA expects all persons to consider that they are representatives of NSW CFA and to take responsibility for ensuring that any references to NSW CFA, its activities or its members, are accurate and comply with all of NSW CFA's rules, procedures and codes of conduct.

What is social media?

Social media is online media that allows for interaction and/or participation. It is any online communication or activity where people can share information about, or that might impact on, NSW CFA, its members or members of any affiliated bodies who use our services or participate in any events run by NSW CFA or any of our affiliated bodies. Social Media includes, but is not limited to:

- ✦ Social networking sites – eg Facebook, Twitter, Myspace, Pinterest, LinkedIn, Google Plus, Yammer;
- ✦ Video, slide and photo sharing websites and applications – eg Youtube, Flickr, Slideshare, Instagram, Snapchat, Vine, Tumblr;
- ✦ Blogs, including corporate and personal blogs – eg SharePoint;
- ✦ Microblogging sites – eg Twitter, Tumblr, Wordpress;
- ✦ Wiki's and online collaborations – eg Wikipedia;
- ✦ Forums, discussion boards and groups – eg Google Groups, Facebook Groups, Whirlpool;
- ✦ VOD and podcasting – eg SoundCloud; and Mobile applications and texting.

Who does this policy apply to?

This policy applies to all members, volunteers, employees and exhibitors of NSW CFA.

GUIDELINES

Whenever NSW CFA members, workers (including voluntary workers), employees and exhibitors interact on social media, in either an official or personal capacity, and in relation to activities concerning the cat fancy, the following guidelines must be followed:

- ✦ Ensure that you are aware of who you are representing – it is important that readers of your posts do not misconstrue your personal comments as representing an official NSW CFA position;
- ✦ Abide by the Constitution, Procedures and Codes of Ethics of NSW CFA;
- ✦ Act in a way that falls within community expectations of good and appropriate manners;
- ✦ Be polite and respectful to NSW CFA, its members, employees, workers (including voluntary workers), affiliates and other associated parties – including judges and workers;
- ✦ Do not criticise, disparage, or make derogatory or negative comments about NSW CFA, its members, workers (including voluntary workers), employees, affiliates, domestic or international judges – either expressly or impliedly;
- ✦ Respond to others views respectfully;
- ✦ Do not harass, bully or intimidate;
- ✦ Do not make negative or adverse comments about the exhibits of another exhibitor or member of NSW CFA or any of its affiliates;
- ✦ Obtain written permission from NSW CFA before using the NSW CFA logo or posting any content on a social media platform or using any IT services to make statements or comments on behalf of NSW CFA or which might be construed as representing a position of or view held by NSW CFA;
- ✦ Respect copyright, privacy, financial disclosure and other applicable laws;
- ✦ Obtain permission from a judge prior to videoing judging at a show. Such permission may be by way of a general request prior to the commencement of judging;
- ✦ Obtain written permission from NSW CFA or any judge whose photo or video you plan to publish on social media. Such request and permission may be given by email; and Do not bring NSW CFA into disrepute or otherwise attract negative publicity.

POLICY NON-COMPLIANCE

While social media provides an excellent opportunity to share knowledge, celebrate successes and learn about the cat fancy, misuse of social media can have serious consequences for NSW CFA, its employees, workers (including voluntary workers) and members, and cause considerable distress.

All reports of misuse of social media or contravention of this policy and guidelines will be investigated and disciplinary action may be taken in accordance with the Rules of NSW CFA Inc that relate to disciplinary action.

Notices

Members

There is one account only for direct deposits for OFFICE PROCEDURES:

Bank details: Commonwealth Bank
BSB: 062622
A/C: 10464356

Unless stated otherwise for specific shows or events, please be advised this is the only NSW CFA banking account.

When renewing annual memberships, members are reminded to advise the office with their receipt number, amount and date paid via email to confirm payment.

ALL PAPERWORK must be sent in to the office with proof of deposit being made within 48 hours and failure to comply with this simple procedure will result in direct deposits no longer being accepted.

REMINDERS

- All services must be PREPAID and will not be accepted otherwise. Additional costs may be incurred if payment is not prepaid.
- When registering litters, it is the breeder's responsibility to enter the Date of Service on the Litter Registration Application
- Any articles or photos for the journal need to send to the office by one month prior

IMPORTANT NOTICE

After considering feedback from our members, the Management Committee has determined that the following protocol is appropriate for re-registrations of interstate and imported cats: British Shorthair - a five (5) generation pedigree, certified to four (4) generations (unchanged from our previous notice and effective from 1 January 2019; Burmese from ANCATS or imported from New Zealand - an eight (8) generation pedigree, certified to four (4) generations; all other breeds - a four (4) generation pedigree, certified to four (4) generations (unchanged); all other breeds - a four (4) generation pedigree, certified to four (4) generations. Our General Operating Procedures will be amended to read:

The certified pedigree (certified by a recognised cat controlling body) of an interstate or imported cat must accompany an application for re-registration. This pedigree must show breeds, colours and registration numbers for all cats in the first four (4) generations, except that in the case of Burmese from ANCATS or imported from New Zealand the pedigree is required to show breeds, colours and registered numbers for the first eight (8) generations, certified to four (4) generation's and in the case of British Shorthairs the pedigree is required to show breeds, colours and registered numbers for the first five (5) generations, certified to four (4) generations

When the cat's respiratory crisis appears to have passed, it will usually be treated "presumptively," says Dr. Goldstein, for one of the two most common lung conditions. The animal will receive steroids if asthma seems to be the problem. Or if pleural effusion is suspected, fluid will be drained from its chest. Only after the cat has stabilized will an exclusionary diagnosis - utilizing X-rays, blood tests, and a fecal examination - be undertaken to definitively identify the source of the respiratory distress, following which an appropriate treatment plan will be established.

Notice to Advertisers

The Trade Practices Act 1974 came into force on October 1st 1974.

It is the advertiser's responsibility to ensure advertisements submitted for publication comply with the Act and that the provisions of the Act are strictly complied with. In cases of doubt, advertisers are asked to seek legal advice before submitting advertising material.

The Editorial Committee reserves the right to withhold publication of any material whatsoever. Views and opinions expressed in this journal are those of the correspondents and contributors concerned and are not necessarily those of the Editorial Committee, printers or publishers. Names and addresses of correspondents may be withdrawn from publication on request but must be supplied to the Editor.

Disputes

From time to time, members refer matters to the NSW Cat Fanciers Association Inc (NSW CFA) when it is not appropriate.

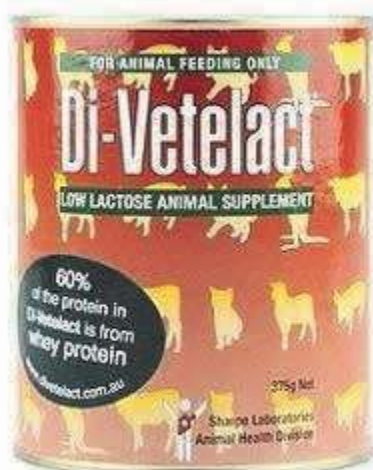

For example, disputes between members in relation to the sale of cats are usually private matters to be determined by the contractual arrangements between members. Disputes on such matters should be resolved by the courts, not by NSWCFCA.

Members are requested to refrain from referring matters to NSW CFA which are a private or domestic matter or which should be properly resolved by the Courts.

Members should be aware that the Consumer Claims Tribunal is available to resolve many disputes in the relation to the supply of goods to a consumer and NSWCFCA recommends that matters that fall within the jurisdiction of that Tribunal and which cannot be resolved personally should be referred to that Tribunal.

Di-Vetelact - The Ultimate Milk Substitute

Highly nutritious - aids in control of scours and diarrhoea when used to feed kittens.
